

Exercises

3.132 [220] (Proposed on 2021-11-18) Show that the relation "having the same order type" is an equivalence relation. Given a set X , let's consider all possible orders on X , the relation therefore defines equivalence classes, and each class is (precisely) an "order type" on X .